

2005 PLANTAGENET OMRAH SHIRAZ

Review Summary

89 pts “This is a smooth, chewy shiraz with cool red fruit and lots of black pepper. The finish tastes of Christmas spices, a fine-textured match for roast beef.”

88 pts “Saturated red. Primary dark berry and cherry aromas are complemented by smoked meat and anise, with a musky floral quality emerging with air. Medium-bodied red and dark berry flavors are firmed by dusty tannins and a subtle bitter chocolate quality. Finishes on a sweet note of black raspberry, with good length. Not especially complex but there's attractive fruit here.”

87 pts “Nicely made in a cool-climate style, this medium-bodied Shiraz offers hints of pepper and clove alongside crisp, sour plum fruit. Charming spice shadings line the long, mouthwatering finish.”

“Plantagenet is regarded by many not just as one of Western Australia's top producers, but one of Australia's. Estate grown and produced wines are bottled under the Plantagenet label, while the “Omrah” range relies on top-quality fruit from around the state. Think sweet black cherries, wood smoke, and pepper, which just about jump all over you thanks to a small addition of Viognier. Take a slurp and find a full, seamless palate with plenty of dark fruit and great balance.”
