

2010 d'ARENBERG THE STUMP JUMP WHITE

Review Summary

88 pts – Best Value $25 and Under

Nick Stock
2012 Good Wine Guide

87 pts “Pale yellow. Pear, melon and honey on the fragrant nose. Spicy, tightly focused orchard fruit flavors show good energy and are lifted by a bitter citrus pith note. Closes with good cut and decent length, leaving a peppery note behind.”

Top 10 Wine Under $20 “28% Riesling, 27% Sauvignon Blanc, 25% Marsanne and 20% Roussanne from McLaren Vale, Australia. An inviting bouquet of citrus zest and tropical fruit. Crisp, fresh and lively flavors of citrus, honey and almond.”

★★★★★ “The Stump Jump is the input in terms of house wines D'Arenberg. And what a start! Chester Osborne has accustomed us for many years to original wines, but remarkably well done. Although we recognize there the imprint of the Australian climate, the wines show a surprising elegance to the wines of the region. Completely as is the case in this wine The Stump Jump made based on a blend of Riesling, Sauvignon Blanc, Marsanne and Roussanne. A long and rounded wine, beautifully complex, which is expressed on a rich nose revealing aromas of lemon, grapefruit, rosemary, tea, melon and honey. This is a savory white wine, expressive, easily digestible and air, that tantalizes the taste buds with its vivacity and velvety texture.”

“An anything-goes kind of white blend: Riesling, Sauvignon Blanc, Marsanne and Roussanne. They are all in together, with the richer Marsanne and Roussanne giving a tropical headiness to begin, then a cut of crispness and acidity from the two other tangier varieties. It gives this wine favorite status for many a quaffing moment.”
