

2010 d'ARENBERG THE FERAL FOX Review Summary

92 pts

Australian Wine Showcase Magazine

90 pts “While many see foxes as a pest, the good folk at d'Arenberg actually don't mind the critters at their Adelaide Hills winery because they thin out the low hanging grapes, which enhances the quality of the higher fruit. There's a real earthiness to this wines, set against a backdrop of berry and redcurrant aromas. It's a true pinot noir, smooth, and fine tannins to finish.”

Cameron Best
The Geelong Advertiser
September 2012

89 pts “Has abundant plum and cherry fruit on the medium- to full-bodied palate, tannins also playing a role. On the cusp between pinot noir and dry red; time in the cellar could tame the Feral Fox, but may not.”

James Halliday
Australian Wine Companion
2013

88 pts “Light, bright red. Red berries and dried cherry on the nose and palate. Taut, focused and gently sweet, showing a silky quality and a hint of bitter herbs on the linear finish.”

Josh Raynolds
Stephen Tanzer's International Wine Cellar
July/August 2012

87 pts “Pale to medium ruby-purple in color, the 2010 The Feral Fox Pinot Noir offers aromas of kirsch, red currants and crushed cranberries with whiffs of forest floor and cinnamon stick. With a good amount of ripe, red berry flavors and crisp acidity this medium-bodied wine is supported by a low to medium level of silky tannins and finishes long with just a suggestion of dried herbs.”

Lisa Perrotti-Brown
The Wine Advocate
February 2013