WINEMAKING:

The 2009 growing season in Bordeaux was one of the best in living memory for white and rosé wines. The grapes for the 2009 Reserve de Sours Sparkling Rosé were hand harvested during the cool, early mornings in early September. Reserve de Sours is the only sparkling rosé made in Bordeaux using the 'method traditional'. This wine has been produced in a small limited edition of just over 800 cases from equal parts Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon. It was aged on the lees for 36 months before disgorgement.

TASTING NOTES:

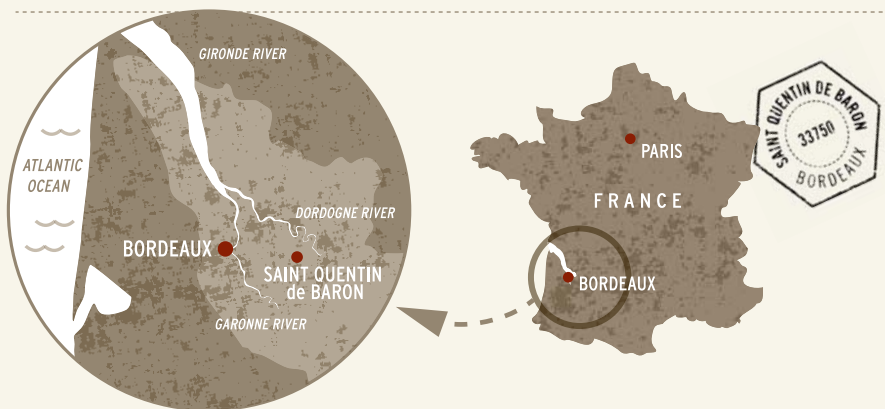

The 2009 Reserve de Sours Sparkling Rosé is a bright salmon pink. The wine shows a restrained nose of rosehips and vivacious, ripe, red summer berry mousse, whilst on the palate it displays very delicate crushed raspberry-like flavors. An absolutely delicious and instantly appealing wine with beautiful balance and fine persistent bubbles. The finish is long and creamy with refreshing, mouth-watering acidity making it a good complement for a variety of foods.
