VINEYARDS:

25 times over 2000 years, the electric blue waters of the Columbia River exploded through the ice dam of Glacial Lake Missoula unleashing cataclysmic floods that swept down the Willamette Valley to the Pacific. The Missoula Floods left behind a mix of river rock, glacial debris and rich river silt creating the layers of sedimentary soils typical of the Willamette Valley. 'The Flood' is primarily a blend of four vineyards in the Chehalem Mountains, Yamhill-Carlton, and Ribbon Ridge AVAs which exhibit the unique "blue" characteristics of sedimentary flood based soils.

WINEMAKING:

The grapes were picked from September 14th to October 18th then 100% de-stemmed and were fermented with wild, indigenous yeasts in 3-ton stainless steel tanks. The grapes were allowed to "infuse" as whole berries at a moderate temperature in an oxygen rich environment until being pressed in small lots in a manually controlled basket press. The Flood has been aged for 10 months in approximately 50% new French oak coming from Sequin Moreau and Francois Frères.

TASTING NOTES:

A study in terrior in one word, Flood. A vibrant purple, there's a dark cherry thrust to the aroma, adorned by a touch of nori. The flavors are more demonstrative - dark and blue, rippling, pure, saturating, they reach the edge of your mouth the way color reaches the edge of the glass. In its texture the wine is at its most seductive, the purity of fruit held in place by a skidding, gravelly grip.

CRITICAL ACCLAIM:

ABOUT CHAPTER 24:

Chapter 24 Vineyards was named after the last chapter of Homer's epic poem, The Odyssey. This particular chapter was added long after Homer died. The Greeks continued the tale to satisfy themselves despite the author thinking he was finished after Chapter 23. The mark of a great ending is not what it says about the past, but rather what it promises for the future, and Chapter 23 clearly raised more questions than it answered. In this same spirit, the story of Chapter 24's wines continues well past the cellar door. Winemaking is just the beginning of the story. The wine may be finished but it is not the end.
