

2013 MOUNT MARY PINOT NOIR

Review Summary

98 pts “Let me put it upfront: corks don’t come better than this. This was a great pinot vintage, and everything about this patrician pinot reflects this, and a great deal more. The color is deep and bright, the bouquet with enough different aromas to cause the beagle to sit by the glass and refuse to move on, the palate with more of the same, no single fruit variety dominant, multi-spice waiting its turn, and the texture and structure of Grand Cru status. Get in the queue to buy this, don't worry about the price.”

93 pts “Bright red. A complex, highly perfumed bouquet displays scents of fresh cherry, raspberry and cola, and a sexy floral nuance builds with air. Sweet and seamless on the palate, showing very good heft and focus to the intense red fruit and spicecake flavors. Shows impressive energy and lift on the gently tannic finish, which hangs on with serious tenacity.”
