

2016 GIANT STEPS APPLEJACK VINEYARD PINOT NOIR

Review Summary

96 pts “Bright and clear hue; a highly fragrant bouquet of red flowers and fruits leads a silky, elegant and relatively light-bodied palate, but don’t be deceived: this has the greatest symmetry and length of the ‘16 Giant Steps Pinots.”

95 pts “Medium to full red/purple color and a lifted, fragrant bouquet involving some whole-bunch fermentation stemminess. Black cherries as well. Fruit-sweet, very ripe and succulent in the mouth. It’s at the fuller end of medium-bodied. Very good and will repay cellaring.”

93 pts “Supple and elegant, this offers a seamless mix of blackberry, raspberry and green peppercorn accents. Generous and lush on the finish. Strikes the right balance between power and finesse.”

93 pts “Beautiful flavors and aromas of strawberries, lemon rind, tea leaves and cedar. Full body, silky tannins and a lively acidity on the finish.”

92 pts “This east-facing vineyard captures the cool morning sun, the climate further tempered by its elevation, at 1,000 feet. It’s the silkiest and most transparent of Giant Step’s 2016 pinots, the sense of complexity and weightlessness heightened, perhaps, by 60 percent whole-bunches in the fermentation. Smoky, with notes of rye over the high-toned cherry flavors, this has tension that lasts.”

90 pts “With more stems (40%) and less new oak (25%) than the Sexton Vineyard, the 2016 Applejack Vineyard Pinot Noir shows more whole-cluster characteristics—a positive dusty, textural feel and slightly green, vegetal aromatics. There’s ample black cherry fruit on the medium-bodied palate, and a soft, velvety feel that lingers elegantly on the finish.”
