Alberto Antonini is an Italian winemaker with vast international experience. Having worked for some of the leading Tuscan wineries, he struck out on his own independent career and became familiar with wine operations all over the world. While continuing to work as a consultant, Alberto also managed to fulfil one of his dreams: restoring the family estate, converting it to biodynamic farming and creating a series of new products that would embody his concept of wine – as natural as possible and respectful of the land where it is made.

Federico Carletti is a beacon for the entire designation and the Montepulciano area. And it's not just because he is currently chairman of the protection consortium. Federico's leadership is solidly established thanks to the work he has done over the years to take his own estate down new paths to greater things, setting trends and showing the way forward. Without exaggeration, Federico's work has changed the course and recent history of Vino Nobile, steering it towards a modern style that has had great influence and earned recognition worldwide.

A slice of Colline Teramane history is right here at this winery, managed with enthusiasm by its second generation of owners, Elena and Alessandro Nicodemi. The 30 hectares form a single plot on the sunny Notaresco plain. Vineyard management is meticulous and the raw material from the rows is vinified in the traditional manner. The solidly built, muscular wines get straight to the point, presenting distinctive and intriguingly Mediterranean in their sumptuous style. A special mention is due to the excellent classic range, known as one of the most reliable basic wines in the region.

The determination of Mimmo and Franca Pasetti soon carved a niche on the busy Abruzzo wine scene for this evergreen winery at Francavilla al Mare, on the Chieti hillside that falls sheer to the Adriatic. Its wines are modern, effective and winners with the consumer. The grapes come from two inland Abruzzo estates, one at Capestrano and the other at Pescosansonesco, run with passion and traditional skill. The range of wines we tasted was, as always, extensive and consistent, made with a thought-provoking, modern approach.
