

2012 KILIKANOON MIRACLE HILL SHIRAZ

Review Summary

94 pts “If you want a full-bodied shiraz to match a flame-grilled bistecca fiorentino this is your wine, and you can do without any side dishes. It is full to the brim with savory blackberry fruit, and tannins that strike hard as the wine enters the mouth but, having made their point, retract their claws.”

93 pts “Opaque ruby. Powerful dark berry liqueur, cola, incense and peppery spice aromas show excellent clarity and pick up a smoky accent with air. Lush and expansive on the palate, offering concentrated black and blue fruit flavors that are given lift and spine by a core of juicy acidity. Becomes more spicy on the back half and finishes sweet and extremely long, displaying lingering spiciness and round, even tannins.”

91 pts “Deep garnet with hints of purple to the color, the 2012 Miracle Hill Shiraz has warm blackberries, blueberry preserves and spice box notes with mocha and pepper plus a touch of lavender. Full-bodied, concentrated and expressive on the palate, it is very spicy, has firm, rounded tannins and a long finish.”
