

2015 YERINGBERG CHARDONNAY

Review Summary

94+ pts “Scented of warm peaches, spiced apples and honeydew melon with compelling hints of honeysuckle, baking bread and marzipan, the 2015 Chardonnay has a beautiful satiny texture with an elegant, medium body and seamless line of refreshing acidity, finishing long with savory yeasty/toasty layers.”

Lisa Perrotti-Brown, Robert Parker’s Wine Advocate
October 2017

94 pts “A fleshy, full-bodied chardonnay with stone fruit and cashew to the fore. To a degree, countercultural.”

James Halliday, Australian Wine Companion
2018

94 pts/100 BEST WINES OF THE YEAR “The de Pury family established their vineyard in 1863 and replanted it after a nearly 80-year hiatus in 1969. David de Pury now farms the vines; his sister Sandra makes the wines. This 2015 is a deep yellow-gold, a tangy chardonnay that parallels Chablis in its briskness and mineral tension. It’s a wine of salty, creamy refinement, with nutmeat flavors that are fresh rather than oxidative. For Raveneau drinkers on a night off.”

Joshua Greene, Wine & Spirits Magazine
Winter 2017

90 pts “For one of Australia’s most historic, charming, and low-tech wineries, this wine is appropriately old school in style, reflecting winemaker Sandra de Pury and her father Guill’s disinterest in wine trends. Unapologetically luscious, it oozes butterscotch, lemon curd, pineapple custard and melon rind. Thankfully, there’s also a good lick of acidity to balance out all that richness, although it’s standing in another corner for the moment. With time, all should come together and this should age gracefully.”

Christina Pickard, Wine Enthusiast
August 2018