

2017 GREYWACKE PINOT GRIS

Review Summary

GREYWACKE

Kevin Judd

95 pts “Light to mid-yellow colour. The bouquet is very ripe and rich, with exotic fruit aromas including spiced poached stone fruits and traces of passionfruit, pineapple and guava. The palate is full and rich, round and almost opulent, with gorgeous texture and harmony, a taste of lychee and a trace of sweetness enhancing its irresistible drinkability. It’s veering towards an Alsace vendange tardive style. Delicious!”

92 pts “This has richness and plenty of sweeping fruit weight that is all apples and pears. The palate has a succulent, fleshy texture and handy layering with good balance.”

91 pts “Baked apple notes emerge on the nose of the 2017 Pinot Gris. This is medium to full-bodied but with greater focus and delineation than in most vintages (along with perhaps a touch less ripeness). Lemon and lime notes, even a hint of bergamot, bring intriguing citrusy complexities to the finish.”

91 pts “Ripe peach and pear flavors have a soft, juicy acidity and an elegant profile, with details of white pepper, dried chamomile and honeysuckle on the finish.”

91 pts “A ripe and generous style that sits in the off-dry (10g/L) department. It offers baked apple, apricot and mixed spices within the gentle core of fruit, and provides phenolic grip, hugging the palate on the satisfying finish. There’s a hefty 14.5% alcohol level here, which, in combination with the residual sugar and the delectable fruit flavors, is further proof of this wine’s rich yet balanced ripeness.”
